Course Description: This course will explore how anthropology, and related disciplines, approaches the study of selected sorts of interventions into human life and society. These forms of intervention – development, human rights, humanitarianism – differ in the scale and scope of their projects and of their intended effects. They also share many common features. Each is explicitly concerned with improving conditions under which people live, and yet each has also been subjected to substantial critique for often producing opposite outcomes. In one way or another, each of these projects also takes as its object the human subject, and in so doing contributes to shaping ideas about humanity. The aim of this course will not be to be simply “for” or “against” any of these forms of intervention, but to critically engage with the multiplicity of their effects. In the process we will also consider what an “anthropology of intervention” might look like. The geographical focus of the course will be the Middle East, though materials will be drawn from other areas as well.

Required Texts:
The following texts are available for purchase at the GWU bookstore and are on reserve at Gelman library:
Giorgio Agamben, Homo Sacer: Sovereign Power and Bare Life (Stanford: University of Stanford Press, 1998)

Additional required readings are available through electronic reserves on blackboard.
Course Requirements:

Attendance and Participation: This course is a seminar and in order for it to be successful, we all need to come to class having done the readings and prepared to discuss them. Preparation for discussion includes identifying puzzling aspects of the text, highlighting passages for analysis, and raising questions for debate. If you have to miss class, please let me know beforehand.

Reading Response: For each class, everyone is required to post – through Blackboard – ½- to 1- page reflection papers. You should also read each other’s postings before class. Responses should be posted by 9 am on the day of class (to accommodate night-owls and still leave enough time for us all to read the postings). These are not formal papers, but rather are an opportunity for you to react to and reflect on the readings for the week. Raise questions the readings posed for you, think about how they relate to other things we have read, consider how they fit into the course as a whole. These postings are intended to help you in organizing your thoughts about the readings and to create a space for dialogue outside the classroom.

Presentation and Leading Discussion: Each week a student (or two) will be responsible for presenting the reading to the class and for helping to lead class discussions. These presentations should be brief – 10-15 minutes. In addition to discussing the readings, presenters should comment on the postings (noting themes in the responses, interesting questions raised). The presentations are not meant to be the final word on anything, but rather to open up class discussion on the texts.

Seminar Paper and Paper Preparation: The seminar paper is something you should be thinking about and working toward throughout the semester. To this end, you will be required to submit a paper topic and tentative bibliography on October 23, an abstract on November 13, and you will be required to do a presentation on your project on November 27 or December 4, all before submitting the final paper, which is due December 10. The paper should be 15-20 pages.

Your grade for the course will reflect your efforts in fulfilling each of these requirements.
Class Schedule

Part One: Anthropology and Interventions

September 4: Introduction: On the idea of an anthropology of intervention

September 11: Anthropology as intervention: modes of knowledge, forms of practice

September 18: Powers of Life and Death

September 25: Subjects of Intervention
Fred Cooper, “Modernizing Bureaucrats, Backward Africans, and the Development Concept” in International Development and the Social Sciences, 64-92.
Part Two: Development

October 2: The Development Apparatus

October 9: Development and Market Logics

Part Three: Human Rights

October 16: Justice for Whom?: Crimes, Courts, and Possibilities for Resolution
Lisa Hajjar, Courting Conflict: The Israeli Military Court System in the West Bank and Gaza (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2005) – chapters 1, 2, 6

Ron Dudai, “‘Can You Describe This?: Human rights reports and what they tell us about the human rights movement,” unpublished manuscript

October 23: Paper topic and tentative bibliography for seminar paper due
Initial discussion about proposed topics

October 30: Ethnography of Human Rights

November 6: Sexuality and the Arab World: Colonialism or Human Rights?

Human Rights Watch, “In a Time of Torture: the assault on Justice in Egypt’s Crackdown on Homosexual Conduct” [can skim parts] available to download at: http://www.hrw.org/doc/?t=mideast_pub&c=egypt

Part Four: Humanitarianism

November 13: Humanitarianism and Refugees
Aihwa Ong, “The Refugee as an Ethical Figure,” in Buddha is Hiding

November 20: Humanitarian Actors and Ethical Dilemmas

Abstract for seminar paper due

November 27: presentations

December 4: presentations

December 10: Papers Due, by 4pm