

ANTH 277
Anthropology of the State and Government in the Middle East

Spring 2010

Professor Ilana Feldman
Office: 2112 G St, Rm 101
Tel: 994-7728
Email: ifeldman@gwu.edu
Office hours: T 11-12 and Th 11-12, and by appointment

Course Description: This course is an anthropological exploration of formations of government, state, and society in the Middle East. It will introduce students to debates in anthropology (and the social sciences more broadly) about how to analyze these categories and the relations between them. Thinking about different ways of studying government, we will consider whether anthropology – and its method of ethnography – offers a particularly helpful perspective. As we develop a shared understanding of scholarly debates, we will also turn our attention to particular examples from the Middle East. In looking at these cases, we will explore both what Middle Eastern experiences might tell us about the state and government more generally and what the theoretical literature on the subject might help us understand about the Middle East. We will study both colonial and post-colonial states; will consider government at the local, national, and international level; and will explore the diversity of social relations that participate in rule.

Required Texts:

The following texts are available for purchase at the GWU bookstore and are on reserve at Gelman library:

Tim Mitchell, Colonising Egypt (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1988)

Ilana Feldman, Governing Gaza: Bureaucracy, Authority, and the Work of Rule, 1917-67 (Durham: Duke University Press, 2008).

Eyal Weizman, Israel's Architecture of Occupation

Lisa Wedeen, Peripheral Visions: Publics, Power, and Performance in Yemen

Esra Ozyurek, Nostalgia for the modern : state secularism and everyday politics in Turkey. Durham: Duke University Press, 2006.

Julia Elyachar, Markets of Dispossession: NGOs, Economic Development, and the State in Cairo (Durham: Duke University Press, 2005).

Asef Bayat, Life as Politics: How Ordinary People Change the Middle East

Additional required readings are available through electronic reserves on blackboard.

Learning Objectives:

- To understand how anthropology and related disciplines approach the study of the state and government
- To recognize and evaluate the ways states shapes societies and human subjects
- To critically analyze scholarly debates about the state and government in the Middle East
- To conduct independent research and writing that explores these questions

Course Requirements:

Attendance and Participation: This course is a seminar and in order for it to be successful, we all need to come to class having done the readings and prepared to discuss them. I expect you to attend every class meeting. Preparation for discussion includes identifying puzzling aspects of the text, highlighting passages for analysis, and raising questions for debate. Joining in class discussion is vital. You will notice that your grade includes a participation component. I know that not everyone has the same level of comfort with joining in class discussion. If this is an area of challenge for you, come and see me early in the semester and we can try and work on some strategies for your involvement.

Reading Response: For each class, everyone is required to post – through Blackboard – ½- to 1-page reflection papers. You should also read each other's postings before class. Responses should be posted by 9 am on the day of class (to accommodate night-owls and still leave enough time for us all to read the postings). These are not formal papers, but rather are an opportunity for you to react to and reflect on the readings for the week. Raise questions the readings posed for you, think about how they relate to other things we have read, consider how they fit into the course as a whole. These postings are intended to help you in organizing your thoughts about the readings and to create a space for dialogue outside the classroom.

Each posting should conclude by raising a question or identifying a passage that you would like to discuss in class. Questions can include: I didn't understand what the author meant by X, can we spend some time on this; I was intrigued by idea Y and would like to explore it further; I saw a connection or contradiction between what this author argues and what another text proposed, I'd like to discuss this further. Whatever you raise as your question or passage you should be prepared to explicate further in class. We probably won't get to every question, but they will provide some guidance for our discussions. If you tend to be shy about jumping into discussion, your question can also give you a way of joining in.

You do not need to post for the day you are presenting.

Presentation and Leading Discussion: Each week a student (or two) will be responsible for presenting the reading to the class and for helping to lead class discussions. These presentations should be brief – 10-15 minutes. In addition to discussing the readings, presenters should comment on the postings (noting themes in the responses, interesting questions raised). The presentations are not meant to be the final word, but rather to open up class discussion on the texts. Sharing in leading discussion is a crucial part of the presenter's responsibilities.

Seminar Paper and Paper Preparation: The seminar paper is something you should be thinking about and working toward throughout the semester. To this end, you will be required to submit a paper topic and tentative bibliography on February 25 and you will be required to do a presentation on your project on April 15 or April 22, all before submitting the final paper, which is due April 29. The paper should be 15-20 pages.

Grading:

Attendance:	10%
Participation	15%
Reading responses:	10%
Presentation and leading discussion:	15%
Seminar paper:	50%

Class Schedule

Part One: Anthropology, government, and the state

January 14 - Introduction: Debates about States in Anthropology

Reading for reference:

Michel-Rolph Trouillot, "The Anthropology of the State in the Age of Globalization: Close Encounters of the Deceptive Kind," in Global Transformations: Anthropology and the Modern World (New York: Palgrave, 2003), 79-96

January 21 - State forms: colonialism and post-coloniality, nation-states and global governance

Frederick Cooper, "States, Empires, and Political Imagination," in Colonialism in Question: Theory, Knowledge, History, 153-203 (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2005).

Partha Chatterjee, "Whose Imagined Community?," "The Colonial State," and "The National State," in The Nation and its Fragments (Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1993) – pp.3-34, 200-219

John Kelly and Martha Kaplan, "Nation and Decolonization: Toward a new anthropology of nationalism" Anthropological Theory 1 4 (2001):419-37

Akhil Gupta and James Ferguson, "Spatializing states: Toward an ethnography of neoliberal governmentality," American Ethnologist 29, no. 4, (2002): 981-100.

January 28 - The human condition: governing people and society

Michel Foucault, "Governmentality" In The Foucault Effect: studies in governmentality, ed. G. Burchell, C. Gordon, and P. Miller, 87-104 (Chicago: U. of Chicago Press. 1991).

Louis Althusser, from "Ideology and Ideological State Apparatuses" in Lenin and Philosophy (New York: Monthly Review Press, 1971) – pp. 140-148, 170-176.

Hannah Arendt, "The Decline of the Nation-State and the End of the Rights of Man," in The Origins of Totalitarianism, 267-302 (New York: Meridian Books, 1951).

Partha Chatterjee, "Populations and Political Society," in Politics of the Governed: Reflections of Popular Politics in Most of the World (New York: Columbia University Press, 2006).

February 4 - Studying states and government: approaches and examples

Timothy Mitchell, "Society, Economy, and the State Effect," in State/Culture: State-Formation after the Cultural Turn, ed. George Steinmatz, 76-97 (Ithaca: Cornell University Press, 1999)

James Scott, "Nature and Space," in Seeing Like a State: How Certain Schemes to Improve the Human Condition Have Failed (New Haven: Yale University Press, 1998) – pp. 11-52.

Brenda Chalfin. "Global Customs Regimes and the Traffic in Sovereignty: Enlarging the Anthropology of the State" Current Anthropology 47:2 (2006): 243-276

Akhil Gupta, "blurred boundaries: the discourse of corruption, the culture of politics, and the imagined state" American Ethnologist 22 2 (1995): 375-402.

Part Two: The Middle East

February 11 - Tim Mitchell, Colonising Egypt (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1988)

February 18 - Ilana Feldman, Governing Gaza: Bureaucracy, Authority, and the Work of Rule (Durham: Duke University Press, 2008).

February 25 - Eyal Weizman, Hollow Land: Israel's Architecture of Occupation (New York: Verso, 2007).

Paper topic and tentative bibliography for seminar paper due

March 4 - Lisa Wedeen, Peripheral Visions: Publics, Power, and Performance in Yemen (Chicago: University of Chicago Press, 2008).

March 11 - Esra Ozyurek, Nostalgia for the modern: state secularism and everyday politics in Turkey (Durham: Duke University Press, 2006).

March 25 - Julia Elyachar, Markets of Dispossession: NGOs, Economic Development, and the State in Cairo (Durham: Duke University Press, 2005).

April 1 - Asef Bayat, Life as Politics: How Ordinary People Change the Middle East (Stanford: Stanford University Press, 2010).

April 8 - No class

April 15 - paper presentations

April 22 - paper presentations

April 29 – Papers Due, by 4pm