

THE MAJOR PROGRAM IN Archaeology
AT THE
GEORGE WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

THE ARCHAEOLOGY MAJOR PROGRAM COVERS BOTH ARCHAEOLOGY itself and other disciplines common in archaeological research: Anthropology, art history, classics, and history. Courses are divided into three groups for distribution purposes: Field and laboratory work, anthropological archaeology, and ancient civilizations. (See the other side of this sheet). Students take courses in all groups, and may further specialize in one discipline or area. All acquire experience in field or laboratory methods. Twelve credit hours or the equivalent of a pertinent foreign language are also required.

The Archaeology Major advisor is Prof. Eric H. Cline, (202) 994-0316, ehcline@gwu.edu.
